On December 10, 1974, source one, a confidential source abroad, advised that one [redacted] also known as [redacted] Black Liberation Front International (BLFI) in the United States of America (USA), had, as a reported part of an assignment in Jamaica, in 1974, to establish links with the most revolutionary forces. (S) (U)

The BLFI is an organization which concerns itself with the problems of the Black man internationally.

[redacted] was planning to invite the local Rastafarian pop group, Bob Marley and the Wailers, to the USA to undertake a tour of certain black campuses. (S) (U)

The members of this group were regarded as the most revolutionary black artists in Jamaica. (S) (U)

Source one, on January 28, 1975, furnished a pamphlet which [redacted] circulated in Jamaica, from where [redacted] departed Pan American Flight 224, December 3, 1974, bound for New York, while using the name (First Name Unknown) [redacted]. While in Jamaica, [redacted] stayed with a woman known only as [redacted] whom he reportedly had met in Canada. (S) (U)
